Ex-IAS man stopped from paying tribute to Pehlu Khan

Alwar: Fringe Hindu outfits in Rajasthan's Alwar stopped a former IAS officer from paying tribute to Haryana dairy farmer Pehlu Khan, 50, who was lynched by cow vigilantes in April.

IAS Harsh Mandar and activists of Karwan-e-Mohabbat were walking towards the lynching site in Behror village when a group of men stopped them, accusing them of disrupting communal harmony.

Subsequently, the local administration and cops stopped Mandar from heading to the spot, saying they activists didn't have permission. Traffic on the Jaipur-Delhi stretch National Highway 8 was blocked during the 30-minute standoff between the activists and administration. After being prevented from going to the spot where Khan was killed, Mandar and the other activists sat outside the office of Behror circle officer and deplored the slow pace of probe into Khan's lynching.

Khan's kin has sought a court-monitored probe into the killing. Mandar was finally granted permission to visit Jaguwas Chowk area, where six men were beaten up after being accused of being cow smugglers. TNN
